John Robinson's circus has drawn the rural population into town in numbers as large as it is common for shows to draw.

The political pot begins to simmer. Although it never reaches such a high state of ebuilition as it does in Opio, it promises to be more agitated by party heat than formerly. The split in the Democratic party of the State on the question of the State debt, provides a contingency on which the Republican candidate for Governor may possibly succeed in being elected by a small plurality. Indeed, the Republicans, some of them, are raising high hopes on success. Their party is a unit for maintaining the State credit. While the Democratic State credit men carried the Democratic State credit men carried the Democratic State credit men carried the convention by a large majority, the minority bolted and nominated a repudiationist. This bolting candidate will receive, in comparison, a larger following in the State at large than in the convention. Some debt-paying Democrats express their indifference to the result if the Republican candi-date should succeed, for then the credit of the State will be maintained, and that is about all they are interested in. Their last county election resulted in such a surprising victory to the Repubcrystallizing enthusiasm. The Repub-lican Convention of the Third Congressional District meets here to-morrow. This District is Democratic by a majority of five thousand; but if row. This District is Democratic by a majority of five thousand; but if Trewhitt, Judge of this circuit court, consents to run, his popularity will greatly diminish the Bourbon majority, if not overcome it. Although this judicial district has always been strongly democratic, Trewhitt was elected by a handsome majority. So far, he has declined to accept the nomination which the Republicans are so anxious to tender him. Hon, Alvin Hawkins, Republican candidate for Governor, and Gen lican candidate for Governor, and Gen. Gibson, of Ohio, will be at the Conven-tion and speak on the political issues of the day. It is believed by many Republicans that if this State were can-vassed as thoroughly as any Northern State, in the course of several elections, the State would be so extremely doubtful as to make the Bourbon throne tremble to its foundation. But good Intentions, enthusiasm, &c., can not supply the lack of means, and thus far all things have flown serenely for the Democrats.

Your correspondent visited the scene of the battle of Chickamauga and took dinner in the house which Gen. Rose-crans had for headquarters. It is a large, solidly built brick house, still occupied by its old proprietor, situated in Walker county, Georgia, fourteen miles below Chattanooga. No marks of the battle are left.

Sitting there at the table with several Southern ladies and gentlemen, such expressions as "fawk," "buttah," "suh!", "hawt," "nothun," "suthun," &c., aroused the sensibilities of your correspondent to such a degree that he was on the point of inquiring of the host, "My dear-r sir-r, wher-re did your-r -rising gener-ration acquir-re their-r er-radition in phonetics?" But consideration for his delicate Southern sensibilities forbade the inquiry.

In city improvements Chattanooga has not kept pace with the increase of her population. Market street is the only one substantially paved its whole length, But other streets are being paved as fast as circumstances allow, and what with her water-works, her seventy thousand dollar court house, her street railroad, and rapid growth, Chattanooga bids fair to be, ere long, a first-class city and metropolis of East Tennessee. At present Knoxville claims equal share of the latter honor. claims equal share of the latter honor. But this is undoubtedly the leading manufacturing city in the State, if not in the South. The Roane Iron Company operate a large blasting furnace and rolling mill. Montague & Co. manufacture all kinds of tiling, fire-bricks, clay pipes, &c. The Wason car works have a large force at work also. Then there is the cotton factory; Chattanooga chilled plow factory; Southern pump and pipe jactory; Wilder's milling supply foundry; two or three other foundries; a sash, door and blind factory; several saw mills; planing mills that manufacture cheap furniture, and other little shops too numerous to menother little shops too numerous to men

A few weeks since, one year from the first attack, the disease returned, but I am happy to say the second Plaster proved as efficacions is the first, and I am now well.
